Message from Helen Edwards – SCE Seniors' Health Services Coordinator

Here at the Seniors' Centre, we believe that being socially connected is important to your health. We all know that exercising and eating our fruits and veggies are crucial in maintaining our physical health, but we need more than that. Since the beginning of time, we have lived with others, with daily interactions and relationships being crucial to our survival. During COVID many of us, particularly older adults, spent a lot of time in our homes - sometimes completely alone. Our opportunities to socialize were diminished, and our volunteer roles were no longer available. This led to some feeling socially isolated. Time has moved on and many of us find ourselves feeling disconnected from our family, friends, and community.

A webinar I recently attended spoke about social avoidance and compared being social to going to the gym. We may go to the gym for a long time but when we stop, returning to the gym is hard. Returning to social activities can also be this way. This booklet serves as a guide to the many activities that are available to participate in. As you flip through the pages, we hope that you will find something that appeals. Take a chance and reach out to the group that interests you. Don't want to go alone? Call the office and we will set you up with a "buddy". If you have ideas about programs that you would like to be available, please give us a call. We can chat.
